

Localisation des sites de l'Allier

The map illustrates the Bourbonnais region, a historical area in central France. It is bounded by the Allier river to the north and west, the Loire river to the east, and the Cher river to the south. Major towns and cities shown include Montluçon, Moulins, Vichy, Lormet, and Bourbon-l'Archambault. The map also depicts the A71 and N101 roads, the Canal latéral à la Loire, and the Sioule river. A red box highlights the area around Lormet, and a yellow box highlights the area around Montluçon.

[illegible]

This topographic map of the Chouhigny area in France shows a region with significant elevation changes, indicated by contour lines ranging from 245 to 365 meters. The terrain is characterized by green hills and valleys. Key locations are marked with yellow dots and red labels: 'Les Marais' is located in the upper central part of the map; 'Savigny' is situated in the middle right; and 'Les Tannières' is located in the lower central part. The map also displays several roads, including D 3, D 114, and D 303, and various water features such as the 'Etang de Chouhigny' and 'Ruisseau de la Rincey'. Other place names visible on the map include Chouhigny, le Cluzeau, Estivareilles, les Fragnes, les Oyards, Mirebeau, and le Verneux. A scale bar at the bottom left indicates a distance of 1 km.